	Note: Correlation to teacher's edition. Key Features: Robust Vocabulary is taught through story selections and Teacher Read-Alouds to elevate the understanding of how words are learned and how they are transferred to new context. Provides Data-Driven Instruction through a) assessment that tracks student progress; b) systematic, explicit skill instruction in the five critical elements of reading; c) differentiated instruction—which monitors progress daily and reinforces through ample practice and application of skills for On, Below, Advanced, and ELL students in small groups; d) the use of assessment results to further scaffold or challenge students with a Strategic Intervention Kit, Challenge Kit, ELL Kit, or Intervention Station—which is a Tier III program that closes the gaps of the five critical elements. 2+2, then review format teaches and reviews skills in a two-week cycle, and then reviews with Readers' Theatre and a Bridge to Reading Comprehension selection. State-of-the-art technology—including one-location and one-sign-on access to e-TE's, lesson planner, e-books, Splash into Phonics, Comprehension Expedition, and much more.

	Key Features: New program based on the most current scientific research. This reading program includes explicit and systematic instruction on the 5 core elements of reading as defined by the National Reading Panel of phonemic awareness, phonics, fluency, vocabulary (both oral and text) and text comprehension, plus comprehensive instruction for grammar, spelling and writing. Embedded in the program, for each lesson, the researcher authors have identified the priority skills needed for each of the 5 core elements at each grade level. The research has identified those specific skills that most accurately predict the reading success of students. "New Literacies" or the literacies needed for a technological world are also explicitly addressed in the reading program.
